3. What Types of Contracts Are There?

Contracts can be classified based on their formation and purpose:

Express Contracts Parties explicitly state the terms, either orally or in writing. Implied Contracts Terms are inferred from conduct, circumstances, or the nature of the relationship. Unilateral Contracts One party makes a promise in exchange for the act of another. Bilateral Contracts Both parties exchange mutual promises.

 - Instantaneous communication (e.g., phone, email) requires acceptance to be received to be effective.
- What is consideration, and why is it necessary?

Question:

Answer:

Consideration refers to something of value exchanged between parties, which is necessary to validate a contract under English law. It serves as evidence that both parties intend to enter into a binding agreement.

- Must be sufficient but need not be adequate (the law generally does not judge the fairness of consideration).
- Can be a promise to do something or refrain from doing something.
- Can be past, present, or future, but only if it is part of the current bargain (past consideration is generally not valid).
- Must move from the promisee; a third party cannot provide consideration unless there is a specific exception.
